ILLINOIS HOUSE PASSES SEARCH-SEIZURE REPEAL

RAIN WOULD SEND RIVER OVER BANKS

Mississippi Lowlands Threatened by Record High Water

BY GORDON M. SESSIONS
Associated Press Staff Writer
Quincy, Ill., April 23—(AP)—Possibility of rain in the watersheds north of here held the greatest potential danger today for nearby Illinois, Iowa and Missouri lowlands, after prospects of a decline in the Mississippi River yesterday had brought hope that the levees might withstand the highest waters in 78 years. Rain today, in the opinion of veteran observers, would mean that every levee in this region, from Keokuk, Iowa, to Louisiana, Mo., would be in imminent danger.

South Quincy Periled
A rise of another foot here would probably send the river through or over all the dikes in this vicinity, it was predicted. South Quincy last night faced its most serious situation since the high water began in March. A hole developed in the levee and workmen were kept busy all night to prevent a break. It is estimated there are approximately a million dollars worth of homes and improved farm buildings in the district, which is one of the most fertile in the endangered section. National guardsmen remained on patrol duty there.

Hundreds Are On Guard
Concern was still felt for the Gregory district, north of Canton, Mo. Hundreds of men remained on duty there, and the Lima Lake district of Illinois, about ten miles north of Quincy, scores were kept moving on the river, bringing in new supplies of sand bags. The St. Louis-St. Paul line of the Burlington railroad was still under water between Hannibal, Mo., and Keokuk, making it necessary to route trains up the Illinois side. Automobile traffic has been halted between here and Keokuk because of washouts between Canton and LaGrange, Mo., and because the approach to the Hamilton-Keokuk wagon bridge is under water on the Illinois side.

The Fabius river, which joins and enters from Missouri rose yesterday, but no especial concern was felt since this stream was the one which broke through in Marion County, Mo., last Saturday and its damage has already been done. Bear creek, north of here in Hancock and Adams counties, remained at about their Monday morning level.

Worst Flood Since 1851
The present flood is the greatest that has swept this section in three-quarters of a century. Not since 1851, when the great flood of that year sent the river to 225 feet, has the level risen so high or remained high for so long.

At least 700 men were reported out of work by closing of mills and factories on the river front here.

Five Thousand Homeless
Snowlake, Ark., April 23—(AP)—More than 5,000 persons in Phillips and Desha counties were homeless today and at least 14,000 acres of rich farming lands were inundated, the result of a break in the Laconia Circle levee and high water around the main Mississippi River levee at Knowlton's Landing.

High water from the White River, backed against the circular dyke for several weeks yesterday forced a gap in the levee more than 200 feet wide. Residents after receiving warnings by telephone and farm bells gathered part of their belongings and hurried to safety. No loss of life was reported. All livestock was saved.

The onrushing waters today had inundated Snowlake, water in some places being nearly 15 feet deep. The Laconia Circle section, a low lying area; at one time was believed to have been a lake. There is no levee protection for the White River and the region around it had been under water for several weeks.

THE SUSQUEHANNA FLOOD
Harrisburg, Pa., April 23—(UP)—Clearing skies today held out hope that the crest of the Susquehanna flood, which has caused three deaths and heavy property damage, would be reached soon.

Lowlands in the vicinity of Wilkes-Barre were inundated and families have been forced to flee from homes in the river-bottom sections.

BACK FROM HOSPITAL
Marvin Blivins has returned from Chicago, where he was a patient at the West Side Hospital for several weeks. His right leg, which was injured in a motorcycle accident, is in a cast. The bone was fractured and the ligaments were torn, and it was a delicate operation to put them all in place.

Benefit for Policemen and Firemen Monday

SIGNOR FRANK PAPANIA

Noted Italian-American tenor who will be the feature artist at a concert to be given at Armory hall next Monday evening at 8:15 o'clock for the benefit of the Policemen's & Firemen's Relief Fund, which will provide sick and funeral benefits for the members of the Dixon police and fire departments.

This relief organization, of unquestioned worthiness, has never appealed to the people of Dixon in any way, and therefore the concert which will be presented next Monday in its benefit should be most liberally patronized. The program will feature high class selections, including solos by Signor Papania and selections by the Peterson & Sonntag trio—piano, violin and cello.

Members of the police and fire departments today started the advance ticket sale and they hope to fill the hall to capacity.

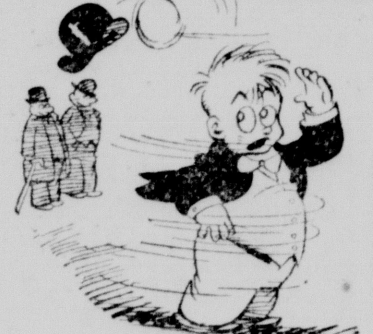

Boys Are Shooting Birds and Tramping Down Flower Beds

Depredations by thoughtless boys about the city have been reported to the police and to this office, and it is hoped the boys will see the error of their ways and desist in their practices before the authorities are forced to act. From several quarters of the city have come reports that boys have apparently deliberately trampled down flower beds; and also there are several laws which make a practice of killing birds with their air rifles. Many people of the community co-operated during the extremely severe winter to provide the birds with food that they might survive—and it is a cruel twist of affairs that now makes them the targets of boys with rifles.

Crab spiders of Brazil have legs that occupy a surface nearly a foot in diameter. Their bodies are seldom more than two inches long.

DIXON GIVES THANKS FOR AIRPORT GIFT

Mass Meeting Sends Resolution to Mr. Walgreen

About a hundred citizens of Dixon got their feet off the ground, to use an aviator's phrase, last evening, and attended a very enthusiastic meeting held at the city hall, which was called by President Dement Schuler of the Chamber of Commerce. A discussion of plans for the Dixon airport, made possible by the gift from Charles R. Walgreen a few days ago, was the subject of interest.

President Schuler presided and called the meeting to order and explained that a 160 acre tract of land had been leased, Mr. Walgreen agreeing to pay the rental of the field for a ten year period. The purpose of calling the mass meeting, he stated, was to ascertain the extent of local interest. In discussing the location and size of the field, President Schuler, himself a flier, stated that the airport was ideal in all of its accommodations and with great possibilities for the future, the extent of which could not be anticipated at this time. He suggested the organization of a corporation on a non-profit basis to finance Dixon's portion of the expense in preparing the field.

Many Good Talks.
Robert Sterling, member of the aviation committee talked briefly of the possibilities of Dixon's airport. He stated some interesting figures which he had collected showing that in 1928 there were 26 individual airlines, covering 39,000 miles daily and that 800 different firms were engaged in operating planes for hire. Approximately 6,000 pilots are now flying with 10,000 preparing to do so.

He told his listeners that the opportunity was one which the citizens of Dixon should avail themselves of the advantages of a municipal airport, the possibilities of which cannot be foretold.

F. X. Newcomer was called upon and said that it was his belief that Mr. Walgreen felt that the citizens of Dixon would take active interest in the development of the airport, and added that there was a considerable amount of work to be done in preparing the field.

Mayor Frank D. Palmer was asked to address the gathering, and in his opening remarks, said:

"We have had the news of Mr. Walgreen's present to Dixon and we are to have an airport. Many will now ask why Dixon should have an airport. Dixon is but 45 minutes from Chicago, flying time and this is a wonderful opportunity to develop our city. We may as well admit it, we are selfish, we have not advertised Dixon as it should have been advertised. Had we done so, Rock river would be lined with cottages from Dixon to Oregon. This municipal airport is a wonderful opportunity for Dixon. It will advertise our city and should be advertised."

Past President Ray S. Kline of the Chamber of Commerce said that the gift of Mr. Walgreen was a unique one. Cities throughout the United States are struggling to develop airports, he said, and trying to finance air fields, and no other city or town has been offered the wonderful opportunity that Mr. Walgreen has given to Dixon. Every citizen, he said, should by their enthusiasm, show their appreciation of this gift.

President Schuler named Postmaster John E. Moyer a committee of one to secure the signatures of all attending the meeting, which were to be attached to a resolution, to be forwarded to the donor of the airport. The motion providing for the drafting of such a resolution was unanimously adopted.

Want to Raise $5,000
The subject of raising possibly $5,000 to be used in preparing the field and assuming the city's portion of expense, was discussed at some length. Methods of raising such a fund were discussed and various plans suggested. Two citizens made voluntary suggestions at once. Robert Peterson of the Dixon Implement company told the gathering that he would prepare the ground at the field without remuneration. R. A. Rodesch volunteered the first subscription toward a fund, subscribing $50.

Sam Watson, Ed. Valle, Dr. Z. W. Moss, W. C. Durkes, Edward Jones and E. N. Howell gave enthusiastic talks. Mr. Valle particularly touched upon the financing of the fund for the airport as did Mr. Durkes. It was suggested that instead of receiving voluntary subscriptions that certificates be issued in various sums.

ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH PLANS PARISH HOUSE

Fine, Modern Home to be Built for Father Foley Here

A long-contemplated and much-desired improvement to the property of St. Patrick's Catholic church in this city is to be realized this spring in the erection of a fine new brick parish house at a cost of between $20,000 and $25,000.

For some time a committee of the church, composed of John H. Loftus, chairman; William F. Hogan, treasurer, and Edward Jones, secretary has been at work on the project, and it was announced today that plans had been completed; that the work will be submitted to local contractors for proposals this week and the contract will be let as soon as possible.

Will Move Old House.
In the meantime Rev. Fr. Michael Foley and his household are moving to the Henry property on Highland avenue, which is convenient to the church, and it is announced that the old frame parish house, which has served for many years, will be sold and moved off the lot at the corner of Peoria avenue and Seventh street, to make room for the new building.

Modern and Comfortable.
Plans for the new parish house call for a two-story house of brick and stone and a three-car garage of the same construction. The new parish house will contain thirteen rooms and three baths, and will provide ample room for Fr. Foley and his Curate and also ample room for guest priests, a need of which has been felt for several years.

The priest's study will extend across the entire front of the second floor of the house, with his quarters conveniently near, and the Curate's study and quarters will be at the rear of the second floor.

The new house will be modern in every way and will be a source of pride to the members of the parish and also to the people of Dixon.

OREGON GIRL SHOT BY RIFLE; RUSHED TO DIXON HOSPITAL

Lucille Jones, Age 12, Critically Injured in Accident

Lucille Jones, 12 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Jones of Oregon, was rushed to the Dixon public hospital last evening in the record breaking time of 16 minutes, in a critical condition, the result of being shot through the back with a 22 caliber rifle. The rifle was in the hands of a neighbor boy who was playing in his yard and was accidentally discharged. The leaden missile, it was found upon examination, had passed through the lung and narrowly missed the heart.

Eugene Grimes, 12 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Grimes, had a 22 caliber rifle while playing with several other boys near the Jones home. He was running with the gun when he stumbled and fell. The gun was discharged, the bullet hitting the girl in the left side of her back.

Screams for Help.
She fell to the ground, screaming for help. She was carried into her home and a physician was called to attend her. When the seriousness of the wound was discovered, the doctor ordered her removed to the Dixon hospital.

Placing the wounded girl in his automobile, the doctor, escorted by Sheriff Sam Good, the Grimes boy, made the trip to Dixon hospital in 16 minutes. The girl was taken to the x-ray room for examination. Pictures showed the bullet had pierced the lower part of the left lung and had narrowly missed the heart.

Condition Favorable.
Although the outcome of the girl's injuries will not be known for a day or two, her general condition was reported as favorable by attending physicians.

The accident cast a shadow of gloom over the children in the neighborhood. When questioned by Sheriff Sam Good, the Grimes boy said he did not know the rifle was loaded. He was not held for the accident.

LOCATE STOLEN CAR

Chief of Police J. D. Van Bibber this morning secured information as to the location of the Nash sedan belonging to Superintendent I. B. Potter, which was stolen during the evening of February 5 from in front of the Knights of Columbus club house on Third street. Chief J. P. Glasco of Marshalltown, Iowa, informed the Dixon chief this morning that the car had been abandoned on the streets of that city a few days ago.

BOY, AGED 3, ABANDONED IN ROCK IS. HOTEL

Authorities are Seeking Clues to Identity of Little Fellow

Rock Island, Ill., April 23—(AP)—Rock Island county authorities are seeking clues to the identity of a boy about 3½ years old who was abandoned at a Rock Island rooming house three days ago.

The boy was brought to the house two days before by a young couple, supposedly his parents, who kept him confined to a room. They left sometime Saturday with their baggage.

Records of kidnapped children are being examined and in every case where there is a resemblance or where descriptions are similar, communication will be established.

The child said the man and woman were not his parents. Some of the boy's clothing was purchased at Janesville, Wis., according to the labels. He has no recollection, however, of Terre Haute, Ind., where the man said he had been in the restaurant business, according to the rooming house owner.

The boy seems familiar with Danville, Ill., and also talks about his grandmother living on a farm near Sioux City, Iowa. He gives his name as Donald and a last name believed to be Wambach.

The couple registered as Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Joseph.

START DRIVE THIS WEEK TO RAISE A GIRL SCOUT FUND

Committee Needs $1,000 to Finance Scouts for the Year

On Thursday of this week the committee in charge of Girl Scout work in Dixon will launch a drive to collect a fund of $1,000 to finance local Scout activities for the coming year. It has been a year since any funds for this work were solicited and the splendid development of the Girl Scout work in Dixon during the past year gives testimony to the value of the movement and shows the necessity of public support for this worthy cause.

A fund of $1,000 will finance the Girl Scout and Brownie work here for another year. Every person in Dixon should be interested and everyone is invited to have a share in the raising of this fund. Donations of any amount will be received with thanks. Committee of women will canvass the downtown section of the city but will be unable to call upon everyone and all who wish to help are asked to mail checks to the Girl Scout Treasurer, Mrs. E. H. Prince, 709 E. Second street, or, if you will phone that number, some one will be sent to call upon you.

MOTHER, DAUGHTER KILLED

Effingham, Ill., April 23—(UP)—Mrs. Louis Gerratt, 35, and her 14-year-old daughter, were killed instantly yesterday afternoon in a grade crossing crash at Woodbury. Mrs. Gerratt had met her daughter at the close of the school day and the two were enroute to their home when the accident occurred. Witnesses reported that the machine was driven directly into the path of the speeding train.

THE ELECTRIC LIGHT

Today may properly be celebrated as the birthday of American night life. Whether the term be used to include an evening spent in an isolated farm house or in a metropolitan night club. For exactly 50 years ago, on April 23, 1879, Thomas Alva Edison was granted a patent on the incandescent lamp—an invention which changed the after-sundown map of the world in less than 20 years.

The basic principles underlying Edison's invention were known to science long before Edison experimented with them. His fame rests on the fact that he overcame enormous difficulties to make a practical public utility of what had been merely a scientific toy.

Contrary to popular belief, Edison's achievement did not consist merely of placing a few magic wires in a "bottle" and hermetically sealing them with a threaded cap. It included devising a practical method of supplying energy to his lamp, in other words, originating power houses. The Pearl street power house in New York, put in operation in 1882, was the first of the great central station systems of today.

EXPERTS FAIL TO AGREE ON REPARATIONS

Sub-Committee Winding Up Work; to Submit Final Report

Paris, April 23—(AP)—The reparations experts again failed in their efforts to find a solution for the long pending reparations problem and began winding up their work today.

The "final work" of the committee, in the words of an official communiqué, began with first efforts to agree on the points to be incorporated in a report of the failure to the reparations commission and to the interested governments.

Today's plenary session, postponed from yesterday because of the late return of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht after a consultation with the German government at Berlin, opened in the midst of rumors of further negotiations between the German and the Allies, but a communiqué issued after adjournment gave no indication that these negotiations were likely to change the situation.

Disagree on Report.
The text of the communiqué pointed out clearly that the experts disagreed not only on the proposed reparations settlement but upon the terms in which that disagreement shall be officially reported. Nevertheless, it was decided that the principal experts go to work on a report concerning the points that are not disputed while the delegations continue to exchange views as to the contested features.

The Germans still appeared to cling to hope of reopening talks concerning the main question of an agreement on reparations payments but the French and Belgians remained impassive, apparently determined to make no move themselves nor to encourage any steps by anyone else to end the German experts should raise their offer very close to the French and Belgian figures. Outside of the German group there was no one who thought any further useful discussions could be held on anything else but the final report.

Those who took up the question of how this report should be framed and what it should contain were Dr. Schacht, Owen D. Young, Emile Mareau, Emile Francqui, Commandatore, Pirelli, Kenso Mori and Sir Josiah Stamp.

Text of Communiqué.
The communiqué said: "The committee on reparations has received and ordered to be filed the report of the subcommittee of last week (that of Lord Revelstoke) stating that an agreement on figures with the German delegation had not been reached."

"The committee in plenary session thereupon has unanimously decided upon the appointment of a subcommittee to be charged with the work of outlining the chief points to be embodied in a report."

"The chiefs of each national group were designated to act as such a committee. While this work is proceeding on points already agreed upon it is anticipated that efforts by all groups alike will be continued in order to arrive at an agreement upon points whereupon the accord has not been reached."

"It is expected that this general procedure will result in a saving of time and by defining the area of agreement, advance the work of the committee. The next plenary session will be convened in due course at the call of the chairman."

DEVINE TALKS ON DRY LAW IN HOUSE TODAY

Dixon Representative Says Radicals Never Settle Things

BULLETIN
Springfield, Ill., April 23—(AP)—The Weber-O'Grady bill to repeal state prohibition enforcement laws passed the Illinois House of Representatives this afternoon. It procured the exact number of votes necessary for passage and no more. The vote was 77 to 65. It now goes to the Senate, and should it be passed there it will be subject first to the Governor's approval and then a referendum vote of the people.

BY HAROLD J. RIEFLER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
The Capitol, Springfield, Ill., Apr. 23—(UP)—After completing its routine business the lower branch of the General Assembly took up the bill to repeal the Illinois search and seizure law.

The bill came up as a special order of business on its passage. The bill carries a referendum. Representative Thomas O'Grady of Chicago opened the debate. He went into the dry killing of Mrs. DeKing at Aurora.

He said he had been called a drunkard because he introduced the bill. He waved a Bible before the house and read several verses advocating the use of intoxicating liquor.

O'Grady read the following Bible passages: "The House."
"And Noah began to be an husbandman and he planted a vineyard; and he drank of the wine and was drunken and he was uncovered within his tent. And Ham, the father of Canaan, saw the nakedness of his father and told his two brethren without."

"Give strong drink unto him that is ready to perish and wine unto those that be of heavy heart. Let him drink and forget his poverty and remember his misery no more."

Hits Anti-Saloonists
"The Anti-Saloon League" he said, "does not judge candidates for the legislature by their sobriety but by the way they vote on wet and dry bills."

He insisted there was no prohibition and never would be. He charged most of the murders of the country can be laid at the door of prohibition.

Rep. Charles L. Wood of Keenes, a minister, answered O'Grady. He said the Chicago member handled his Bible as though it was the first time he ever had one in his hand.

He asked O'Grady to remember that the Bible also said that Noah, when he committed adultery on his own daughter, got drunk.

"It was such a terrible crime," the ministerial legislator said, "that Noah had to resort to strong drink to do it."

He said the legislature could give the women and children no protection if the search and seizure act is repealed.

Devine On Floor
Rep. John Devine of Dixon gave the house his experience on the liquor discussions in nine legislative sessions.

He said it was his opinion that radicals settle no questions. He said he is opposed to the tactics of the radical wets and the radical dries. He attacked the actions of the Anti-Saloon League.

He insisted the last election was not a referendum on the liquor question as claimed by the league. He said the bill to repeal the search and seizure act has no place in the legislature. He declared it would affect the eighteenth amendment in no way.

DIXON GIVES THANKS FOR AIRPORT GIFT

non-interest bearing and without dividends, to finance Dixon's share of the expense of the field.

Veteran Pilot There.

Pilot Turner, of Wausau, Wis., who has had years of flying experience and conducted a school for pilots, gave some interesting information. He told his listeners that Dixon was extremely fortunate in receiving a gift of the proportions Mr. Walgreen had made possible. Pilots flying long distances, he said, would much sooner arrange their overnight stop at Dixon, than going to a Chicago airport.

The meeting proved very interesting from the point of suggestions and discussions.

Propose a Holiday.

It was also proposed that Mayor Palmer set aside a day, or half day, as a public holiday, at which time all citizens of Dixon will be requested to show their interest by going to the field some of the preliminary work that is necessary.

The Finance Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, consisting of H. O. Bardwell, L. G. Rorer, and C. A. Mellott were authorized to perfect a plan to enable the people of Dixon to contribute their bit to this splendid project.

Passed Resolution.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted and was today forwarded to Mr. Walgreen, bearing the signatures of 150 Dixon residents:

Whereas, through the generosity of our esteemed former citizen, Mr. Charles R. Walgreen, Dixon will be the recipient of the gift of a Municipal Airport, and

Whereas, Mr. Walgreen during the years since he lived among us has always exhibited a deep and abiding interest in the welfare and prosperity of our city, and by his many kind expressions of good will has demonstrated his willingness to further all movements to enlarge our opportunities for progress;

Therefore be it resolved, That the signers of this resolution, expressing

Textile Strikers and Police Staged Battle

Gastonia, N. C., April 23—(AP)—Twenty-nine strikers and sympathizers were under charges today and arrested on charges ranging from blocking the sidewalks to drunkenness. None was seriously injured in the process of breaking up the parade, but Leette Blythe, a reporter for Charlotte Observer, was knocked unconscious with a pistol butt by a deputy sheriff as he entered the strike zone.

Nearly 5,000 textile mill workers in six other communities of North and South Carolina are idle.

Convinced Fliers on Relief Mission Lost Their Lives

Sydney, Australia, April 23—(UP)—Both Keith Anderson, Australian pilot, and his mechanic, Robert Hitchcock, lost their lives when they were forced down while searching for the missing airplane Southern Cross, searchers believed today.

Relief planes were unable to land at the spot where Anderson's plane was visible in the wilds, but they were convinced that a mound near the plane was a freshly made grave. Under the plane's wing lay the body of another man. Wheel tracks in the sand indicated that Anderson had tried to take off after landing. A hole indicated that the fliers had tried to dig for water.

A party left Wave Hill today with pack horses to try to reach the spot and bury the bodies there. The journey would take three days.

NIGHTFALL IN THE FOREST
century of tyric calm
Lies in each pillared aisle,
Where parted seasons kept their tryst
In years recurrent file on file.

The rustling leaves in rhythmic sway,
Cup-bearers of the dew and rain,
In vesper chorus softly join
The great woods' hushed refrain.

Shimmering star and silver moon,
A minstrelsy yet milder keep Above the templed shadows where
The harvestings of ages sleep.

Dixon Symphony Orchestra Concert Scored a Delightful Success

Last evening at the Methodist church at 8 o'clock the Dixon Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of the leader, Mrs. Will H. Smith, presented a concert for the benefit of the church school, and scored a great success, for there was a large attendance of music lovers who were more than delighted with the program of inspiring music. Spring flowers were the appropriate decorations for the happy evening, and the gay flower-like dresses of the young women of the orchestral personnel, added the final and pleasing note of color to the scene.

The ensemble work of the orchestra is very fine, also the solo, duet and trio numbers. Mrs. Smith directs with the same spirited enthusiasm inspiring her orchestra to their best efforts. The audience present last evening was appreciative and responsive and rendered enthusiastic applause after each selection.

Following is the program as arranged by Mrs. Smith:

March, Cyrus the Great, King.

A Garden Lyric, Trailing Arbutus, Garbett.

Fox Trot from the Three Musketeers, Priml.

Violin Solo, Melodie by Dawes, Miss Della Smith.

Selection, My Maryland, Romberg, Chanson Triste, Tschalkowsky.

Saxophone Solo, The Glow Worm by Friml, Miss Dorothy Ulch.

Meditation, Von Bion.

Selection, Mikado, Sullivan.

Violin Solo, Berceuse by Godard, Miss Viola Vaage.

Valse Ballet, The Myriad Dancer, Allen.

March, Old Colonel, Shilkret.

In Meditation by von Vion, the violins were especially featured and the players stood during this number, while the accompaniment, a beautiful thing, was a piano solo in itself, played by Mrs. Smith.

Miss Vaage is a violin pupil of Orville Westgate, leader of the Dixon Theater orchestra, and plays very well indeed, as do all the other violinists, including Dean Ball, one of the youngest players. Dixon is better acquainted with the other violinists who all do excellent work.

The personnel of the orchestra is as follows:

Violins—Della Smith, Eva Lawton, Gertrude Nesbit, Bernice Wilhelm, Anna Schaefer, Viola Vaage, Dean Ball, Cornels.

Ned Smith, M. W. Missman.

Clarinet—Harold Boyer.

Saxophones—Fern Kroehler, Dorothy Ulch.

Trombone—Dale Smith.

Double Bass—Brass Bases—Mrs. A. F. Moore, H. I. Hintz.

Piano—Mrs. Will H. Smith.

Miss Della Smith in the beautiful useful number by Dawes, gave an excellent performance. The rich saxophone solo by Miss Ulch was equally enjoyable, also the violin number by Miss Vaage. Miss Kroehler, another saxophone player, Harold Boyer, clarinet; Ned Smith and M. W. Missman, cornets; trombone, Dale Smith; the rich bass notes contributed by Mrs. A. F. Moore and Mr. Hintz; the piano played by Mrs. Smith, leading all the violin ensemble, Gertrude Nesbit, Bernice Wilhelm, Anna Schaefer, Dean Ball, Della Smith, Viola Vaage, all contributed to the success of the selections played and so much enjoyed.

The Old Colonel's March is the one played by the Maxwell Coffee House Orchestra over the radio.

The entire evening was one of much pleasure to all attending.

Holds Daily Tea Party for 60 Years

Lorain, O., April 23—(UP)—Mrs. Amelia C. Faragher, 85, has the unique record of being hostess at a tea party at her home here every day for the past 60 years.

Morning visitors at "Grandma" Faragher's home will find her diligently tending her large tea-kettle. She is always prepared to entertain guests—from three to twenty—who drop in for a brief conversation and to inquire of her health.

The custom was begun by Mrs. Faragher's husband, three score years ago, in the same little farmhouse where "Grandma" now lives. He used to come in from the field in the middle of the morning and spend a half hour or so sipping the drink for which his widow has become famous.

After Faragher died, the daily tea party was continued by their children and grandchildren who grew up into the privilege of "tea at Gram's."

Bobby Baker, one of Mrs. Faragher's little grandchildren, has been punctual at the traditional social event for four years. He is six years old, or a while Bobby couldn't understand why his teacher refused to excuse him so he wouldn't be late at "Gram's" for tea.

Mrs. Faragher is an ideal hostess. An interesting conversationalist, she discourses on a variety of subjects and is careful not to bore her guests with inconsequential matters.

The weather may be inclement, storms may blow, rain or shine—it doesn't matter—because "Grandma" Faragher says she plans to continue her tea parties for at least ten more years.

DOWNTOWN PLAY AREAS DEVELOPED BY WOMEN

Cambridge, Mass.—(AP)—Converting unused back yards in the business district into play grounds for children is a project successfully carried out by the Cambridge league of women voters.

Realizing that municipal playgrounds are often in distant places where children must get into heavy traffic in order to reach them, the women voters launched its plan for backyard playgrounds.

Prizes were offered in a city wide contest. Exhibits of back yard playgrounds were held in all parts of the city. Social agencies were interested. Soon boys and girls were more absorbed in making models of playgrounds than in playing in real ones.

A QUEER WAY OF LIVING.

He was rather an oldish chap, and he looked pretty weather-beaten. The stubby gray beard was unkempt, the khaki breeches and shirt were badly travel-stained, the leathery skin on his face was criss-crossed with wrinkles.

His outfit was almost grotesque. He pushed a dilapidated baby buggy. In it was a tangle of baggage—bundles tied with string, containing, no doubt, extra clothing and such-like. But the leading feature was an enormous book that was strapped on top.

It was a giant among books. A foot thick and twice as long—bigger than the biggest unabridged dictionary, by far—it was, obviously, the king-piece of the whole baggage train. The man laboriously lifted it to a table and proudly opened it. The pages were covered with signatures—signatures of mayors, of governors, of editors, of authors, of cabinet members, of ambassadors, of every kind of dignitary and near-dignitary known to a complex civilization.

"I've got signatures from all over the world," he said proudly. "I've walked all over—Europe, America, Asia, India, everywhere. And everywhere I went I got signatures in this book. Now if you'll just sign your name I'll be moving on."

The signature duly affixed, the old chap shut the book, placed it in the buggy, and started off down the street—a hunched, bent-over figure, odd in its outlandish garb, moving steadily down the busy street to some distant trail leading to no one could imagine where.

That was his life. He had been doing it for years, and would continue to do it until he died. And it struck an observer that this man's way of spending his time was about the oddest he had ever encountered.

Yet, in the long run, it may be that this man's life is no more queer than the lives of most of us.

We haven't, any of us, a very long time on this planet. There are only a few years in which we can make the most of our talents, exercise our faculties for enjoyment and experience, make life mean something worth having. Yet we do not seem to realize it. We slip carelessly into jobs we do not particularly care about, persuade ourselves that they are important, spend all of our energies doing things that don't really matter to us—and, presently, find that the whole performance is about over, with most of the things we really wanted to do left undone.

So maybe the old chap with the baby buggy and the book of autographs isn't so cracked as we think. At any rate, he is doing the one thing he wants to do, however aimless or pointless that may seem. And that is a great deal more than most men can say.

MURDER PARKED FOUR DAYS.

The average American, it is to be suspected, minds his own business pretty well, after all.

In a Detroit residential district an automobile was left parked at a curb four days. No one went near it, no one examined it. Its presence was highly unusual, of course, but the people living nearby didn't give it a thought.

Finally a policeman investigated. Looking inside the car, he found the lifeless body of a woman. Investigation showed that she had been murdered, and that the murderer had disposed of her body by the simple expedient of leaving it in the car and abandoning the car.

It is surprising to learn that that auto, with its ghastly freight, could have stayed at a curb for four days unnoticed. But the American city dweller has a way of minding his own business. He doesn't get nosy when something a little out of the way happens in his neighborhood.

A baby 18 months old appeared in court in England the other day smoking a briar pipe. The item didn't say what he or she was there for, but it probably was divorce.

A Washington newspaper tells of Colonel Lindbergh splashing mud on a crowd that assembled at the field to see him. Maybe he ought to quit flying and go into politics.

One Tennessee county prohibits married men teaching in the public schools. There is plenty for the husband to do at home.

Five women and three children were arrested by Chicago police the other day in a raid on gambling. Something just had to be done.

Several Chicago young people have been arrested recently after wild parties and roadhouse sprees. One can hardly expect parents to improve until youth sets a better example.

Father hasn't said much about needing exercise mother dropped the remark at the dinner table the other day about starting to clean house pretty soon now.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNUCK

The North Star eyed the Tiny bunch and loudly said, "I have a hunch that you have never seen the funny milky way before. It's fun to spread it, me, oh my, and make it streak across the sky. When it is all spread out it looks just like a milky floor."

"It surely is," one Tiny said. And each one shook his little head. They still were rather dazed to see such queer things in the sky. Imagine stars, both large and small, all whizzing round, unless they'd fall. It was a most unusual sight, as they trailed through the sky.

The North Star then broke in again. "We only have this now and then. The milky way cannot be seen on every night, you know. But, when I toss my pail out far, I start them off, and there you are. I am the one, and only one, with power to make them go."

The Tines thanked the star once more. Then Clowny said, "What more's in store. We'd like to see all that we can while we are with the moon." This made the moon man broadly smile, and he replied, "Just wait a while. I think I have another treat. 'Twill be here pretty soon.' This made one of the Tines shout, "Oh, tell us what it's all about. We can't stay very long 'cause we have other things to do. Our bird may tire out flying 'round, so very soon he must be found. You see, we're always very flind to good old Goofy-goo."

Just then they heard a swishing sound. Of course it made them look around. "That's what I meant," the moon man cried. "You've read of this before. And all of them saw, very soon, a big cow jump right over the moon. This pleased them so they clapped their hands, and all began to roar."

CLEMENCEAU AT 87 STILL LIKES STIRRING FIGHT

Woman Interviewer of "Tiger" Says He's Perfect "Dear"

By PRINCESS ALI FAZIL

United Press Staff Correspondent
Paris, April 22—(UP)—Clemenceau is not an old Tiger, he is a purring tomcat. If it would not be mixing metaphors I would call him a dear.

At 87, the Old Tiger's claws are worn. He is no longer the surly politician, the curt grump possessed of a sarcastic tongue with which to give enemies verbal lashings. He is an agreeable old gentleman.

Fifty years ago, Clemenceau was the most feared man in France. He was dreaming of power, he was dreaming of taking revenge on the then young German Empire. He glories in the fact that he had no friends; he wanted none, for friends, he said, were millstones around a politician's neck.

But that was 50 years ago and half a century has changed things. Today Clemenceau is beloved of France. In his tiny flat near the American Embassy he works and sleeps, alternately, through the day and night. When Clemenceau follows Foch into the land of his fathers, Foch will mourn him as the greatest citizen of the present and past.

Does Not Fear Death

Clemenceau does not fear death. He faces it with the same bravery he displayed many times during more than a half century of public life when he stood up before the fighting French Chamber and challenged the Deputies to dare dispute his word.

But there is no question, he has been severely shaken by the rapid deaths of two men whom he greatly admired and loved.

"It is the tragedy of old age that we must see our friends go before us," he told me when I went to him to break the news of the death of Ambassador Herrick.

It was evident that the old warrior was shocked by the news, but it was like him to show no outward sign of it. He would undoubtedly show no trace of emotion if his doctor some day would tell him that he had only an hour more to live.

It is the tragedy of humanity that men grow old and die. Clemenceau should live forever, for he is a patriot stamped of the die of which France possesses few. At 87 he is still as mentally alert and as intelligent as he was a half century before. He has a knack of reading thoughts and even before you speak, he often stops you by saying:

"Yes, I know what you are going to say, but I have nothing to say on that subject."

He has a sort of inborn distrust of newspaper men, probably the natural result of the many diatribes that have been written in the press against him. Having been a reporter and editor himself, he knows the game from the inside out.

But in his old age he has even softened towards reporters and instead of shouting denials at them as in the old days, he punts at them, smiles, disposes of a few epigrams and sends them on their way happy.

Dodges Questions

"My daughter, you shouldn't be condemned to newspaper work," Clemenceau told me, and in an almost fatherly fashion, took my arm and led me into his study.

He dodged like an acrobatic dancer around the questions I put to him, and made general use of his stock phrase: "I never talk for publication. If I have anything worth while to say I shall write it in my memoirs, and they shall be burned the day I die."

Then he smiles victoriously. But Clemenceau is a man, and all men respond to nice treatment—what the French call "boniments." So gradually he opened up on his epigrams and spoke two or three which was quite a concession.

"It is unfortunate but true that really great men are never really appreciated and nice things are never said about them until they are dead. How much better some generals would have felt when they were in the battlefields if certain politicians had thought as much of them then as they do now."

Closes Interview

When Clemenceau thinks that an interview should be over, he makes signs. He generally stands up and starts towards the door. There is no begging for an "encore." You have to follow him and leave.

As I started away, I mistook the door and started to open a door leading into his study.

"You cannot pass through there," he said gruffly.

"Well, then I won't," I reassured him.

"But women always like to pass through doors which are closed to them," he retorted instantly.

Even at 87, Clemenceau is quite dapper and very courteous and polite. He dresses in his swallowtail jacket, but looks fatherly with his bedroom slippers and black skullcap. He constantly wears gray gloves even when he writes and eats.

Alone with his faithful valet, Albert, and his loyal chauffeur, Brabant, he waits for the end. His few friends call often to pay their respects, but his millions of admirers can only mother their affection for him from a distance, for he very seldom appears in public. His days and nights are very fruitful. He sleeps but four hours at a time and in between naps writes at his memoirs, as though spurred on by the knowledge that on a certain not far distant day his end will come.

Here are 7 of Your Congresswomen

By JOHN H. BYERS

Secretary to Congressman W. R. Johnson

Washington, D. C.—This old world of ours is not so very large after all.

The other day I was sitting in one of the "home cooking" restaurants located near the House office building talking with Mrs. Romjue, wife of Representative Milton A. Romjue of Missouri, whose home city is Macon, Mo. Our conversation started with the weather (for it was raining very hard at the time) and after thoroughly discussing that we drifted to politics and the special session of Congress.

Later Mrs. Romjue began to tell me about her motor trip from Missouri to Washington, she and her husband made the trip overland coming to attend the special session. "You should have seen the Mississippi river at St. Louis, it was out over its banks for miles," she declared.

"Yes, I have seen that old river out over its banks many times, at Rock Island, and as far up as Dubuque," I replied. "Do you live so close to the Mississippi?" she asked.

"Yes, about forty miles from the river, my home is at Dixon, Illinois," I answered.

"Dixon, Illinois," she exclaimed, "why there is a minister in our city—our nearest neighbor by the way, who came from Dixon, Illinois, about two years ago, yes, nearly two years ago," she declared. "Is that so?" I answered, "what is his name?"

"Case," she replied. "Rev. Case, pastor of the Presbyterian church."

There you are folks—Rev. Case, and we talked a lot about the Case family. She told me that Margaret was married and lived in Baltimore and had a baby. And she said the youngest daughter was now in school at the Normal School at Kirksville, Mo. She was delighted to know that I knew Dr. Case, for he was very successful in the church work at Macon. "Everyone likes Rev. Case and his family very much," declared the Congressman's wife. So after all our old world is not so very big—and again my proclaiming that I came from Dixon, brought out the fact that most of the people you meet know something about Dixon.

George Brown, column writer for the Washington Post, in writing about the convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution, coined the word "DARlings," and refers to them as "DARlings." Well, one of the "DARlings" from our district called on Congressman Johnson the other day—Miss Jessie E. Spensley of Galena, Ill. She is sister, and another lady friend, both coming from Hibbing, Minnesota. To make a long story short, they left our office with letters to shake hands with President Hoover and to go through the plant where stamps and paper money are made.

The "DARlings" are pretty busy this week trying to elect a president. Every subject known to mankind is being discussed. Their meetings are wonderful, interesting and inspiring. Thousands are turned away daily and nightly. President Hoover and his estimable wife, will receive the Daughters tomorrow afternoon. All the hotels are swarming with the ladies from nearly every state in the nation. From the point of excitement, the United States Congress is not in it with the congress of the Daughters. Since Monday the Congress, while it has convened for more than one hour. But one of the fine days (it has stopped a two weeks' program of rain) the fur will fly and the old dome on the Capitol will rattle—all over the arguments concerning "farm relief" and the tariff adjustments.

President Hoover declares the special session can complete its work and get away by the first week of June—old-timers declare it will be in session until about August first—guess, you might hit it. No one down here will venture a guess as to the time of adjournment.

The wise old birds in the upper branch—known as the Senate, hold the balance of power. Already there are rumors of the Senate tearing the "farm relief bill" to pieces—if they do no one can tell when it will be time to quit. And Dawes will be in England—when he was presiding over the Senate, some one, occasionally, got a good old-fashioned spanking—but Charley will be away, talking turkey to Johnny Bull.

Charley Dawes will wear knee breeches, but he'll be durned if he'll give up his pipe for Turkish cigars or Pall Mall cigarettes—no not he.

Please don't forget this, there was no squabble over the confirmation of the former vice president for Ambassador to Great Britain—no sir, it was unanimous, not even a roll call—and how he did scold them when he was the presiding officer of the Senate—but they evidently liked it—for they confirmed without a murmur.

Miss Jessie Wilson of Freeport, who for the past nine years has held a responsible position in the Bureau of Public Roads, was one of the congressman's callers this week.

President Hoover, the ladies of the White House, all cabinet officials, their wives, and the members of Congress attended the opening game of baseball today between Washington and Philadelphia. Washington got a good trimming. They tell us that Herbert threw a wicked ball. Jim Good, Secretary of War, pulled the flag to the top of the pole—and, "play ball" was heard all over the field—the Navy band played a lively selection and the game was on.

There are quite a few brand new secretaries here for the special session and how seriously they take their duties. The other afternoon I happened to be in the corridor when the bells from the capitol began ringing—there were four rings which gives notice that the House had adjourned. The new secretary stood listening to the bells, then turned to me and said—

"What does that mean?"

"That means adjournment," I replied.

"Adjournment (the House had been in session just thirty minutes) why I thought when the House convened at noon that they stayed in session until 6 o'clock," replied the new one.

"Oh, no," said I, "when there is a ball game, a horse race, or the President goes fishing, Congress stands adjourned," I answered.

"Well, the idea," he declared, "what's the use of meeting until after the race or the game?" he answered.

The longer he's here the more he will learn about the working of Congress.

We older secretaries initiate the new ones—here's one way. We slip into their office when no one is looking and place a note on the secretary's desk, saying, "Call Main 6." That's the White House. In a few moments he calls, "Main 6," and the other end answers—"this is the White House, what do you wish?"—and after some stammering, the new secretary hangs up and scowls and wonders what it is all about. And so it goes.

MOODY INSTITUTE ANNOUNCERS' TRIO TO SING IN DIXON SUNDAY

(Telegraph Special Service)

Chicago, April 23—The famed Announcers' Trio from station WMBI, Chicago, owned and operated by the Moody Bible Institute, will make a personal appearance in Dixon, Sunday evening, April 28, at 7:30 at the Bethel United Evangelical church, of which the Rev. S. B. Quincer is pastor.

Composed of announcers Loveless, Hermanson and King, the popular Moody trio is one of the best known radio singing groups on the air. Versed, as they are, in the art of singing gospel and religious hymns, an undertaking requiring different technique than that for ordinary music, the WMBI trio has been making a successful series of personal appearances throughout Illinois.

Having recorded for one of the largest phonograph companies, the Announcers' Trio of WMBI is known in thousands of homes in all parts of the United States. Their radio work has elicited much praise from the tens of thousands of listeners-in on WMBI, and each month studio officials at the Moody station receive hundreds of letters of commendation.

The trio's schedule of personal appearances is a crowded one, and influential Dixonites interested in the trio managed to include this city in the singers' itinerary. Request songs will be sung by the trio, and those in the audience are invited to ask the trio to sing a favorite hymn or song. This feature of the WMBI trio's tour has been very popular.

An inspiring program of fine old church music will be presented by the trio, in addition to whatever request numbers they render.

STALWARTS WILL FIGHT FOR HOUSE FARM RELIEF BILL

Four Leaders are United to Guard Measure Against Attack

Washington—(AP)—Already approved by the President and on its way through the special session of congress, the house farm relief bill will be protected at every turn by four men largely responsible for its present form.

Representatives Purnell, Indiana, and Williams, Illinois, drafted the measure with Representative Fort, New Jersey, dominating the background.

As the chief proponent of the stabilization corporation principle which succeeded the McNary-Haugen equalization fee as the heart of the farm relief structure, Fort maintained contact with the white house while the bill was in preparation.

Representative Aswell, Louisiana, fourth member of the quartet, supplied many of the ideas from an unsuccessful bill he once wrote around the export debenture plan.

Speaking for the defenders, none of whom expects serious opposition to the bill, Representative Purnell says they are going to fight for passage in the present form against any attack that may materialize.

He expects some effort to circumscribe operations of the stabilization corporation and to define more clearly the powers of the federal farm board.

"We must not tie the hands of the farm in any way," he says, "because the whole relief scheme is predicated on the board's freedom to cope with situations as they develop and which are beyond all power to foresee."

Purnell declares it is the purpose of the bill to make the board the most powerful marketing organization in the world. He believes at least two of the six salaried members should be producers and the others famous marketing experts.

By leaving it to the President to fix the salary of the chairman, he says, the bill intends that he select the best marketing executive in the country and pay any reasonable salary necessary to get him.

Williams says farm relief will stand or fall on the type of men comprising the board. The bill gives them absolute authority, from determining the crop surplus to be removed to fixing the rate of interest on loans to cooperatives. The President will select them with and by the advice and consent of the senate. The secretary of agriculture will be an ex-officio member.

Port, representing a community of consumers, believes the bill as now drafted will insure the farmer a fair price in times of depression and protect the consumer from price fluctuations when the market rises.

Aswell interprets the bill as giving the producer every advantage. With a stabilization corporation to underwrite their business, he says, the cooperatives "have nothing to do but make money."

The government, financing the corporations, may lose money for a time but will make it back over a period of years when production and distribution have been adjusted, he says.

Valuable Hints for Farmers and Their Good Wives

(By U. S. Department of Agriculture)
Parasitic worms flourish in small streams, ponds and puddles on the farm. The areas should be drained or filled. Wet pastures are especially dangerous to young livestock. If animals must be kept on them it is better the stock be of mature age.

If plowing under for corn borer control is to be effective all trash must be turned under completely so that material will not be dragged to the soil surface by later cultivation.

PROFITS RISE COSTS FALL

with Three Fuel

HART PARR TRACTORS

WASSON BROS. FRANKLIN GROVE, ILL.

Neither the depth of plowing nor the time is important as long as a thorough job is done.

Radishes should be grown on a quick, rich soil. If they grow slowly and stay too long in the open ground they have a pungent flavor and are unfit for table use. Successive plantings should be made every two weeks to assure a continuous supply.

Broody hens are one of the causes of decreased egg production in spring and summer months. As soon as a hen is seen to stay on the nest at night she should be placed in a broody coop, where she can be fed and watered regularly. A broody coop has a wire front and a slat bottom so that the air circulates underneath and keeps the hen from sitting.

Every roof should be watertight. The haymow roof in particular should keep out the rain. Moisture in stored hay is likely to promote spontaneous combustion or ignition of the hay.

A good point about Swiss chard is that the outside leaves may be cut successively without injuring the plant. This vegetable, which is a beet grown for its foliage instead of its root, may be grown in the farm garden after spinach, since it is resistant to hot weather. Chard is grown the same as the beet, but should be given more space as the tops grow larger.

The Farm Week in Washington

By FRANK I. WELLER

(Associated Press Farm Editor)
Washington—(AP)—In the opinion of most farm leaders, the new farm relief bill offers potential solution of almost every agricultural problem except overproduction.

They are not sure the profitable removal of crop surpluses will not result in widespread expansion of acreage.

Particularly, they fear the attitude that the government is guaranteeing prosperity in every crop venture and an unbridled scramble to make more money by raising more products.

Some frankly believe the federal farm board will have to devise immediate and drastic steps to control production. One suggestion is that each co-operative handling a commodity in which there is a prospective surplus be empowered to stipulate how much of an individual's crop it will undertake to market.

It was the theory of the old equalization fee that production could be controlled by making each commodity served pay for the removal of its own surplus. Under that plan the producer always had over him the threat that the more he added to a crop surplus the more it would cost him to market his share.

Those who profess no anxiety point to a provision in the farm relief bill which makes it possible for the federal farm board to finance an "educational campaign" from the $500,000,000 revolving fund.

Such a campaign, they say, would embrace the collaboration of every group disseminating economic farm information in helping the producer determine market probabilities.

Foremost would be the department of agriculture with its corps of agricultural economists and marketing specialists. They would estimate domestic and foreign production and consumption, and indicate in what commodities and what amounts the American farmer could expect to produce for domestic and world's markets. To a certain extent it does that now, but it does not have the facilities to make the intensive studies for which it is expected to be called upon in the future.

State departments of agriculture, agricultural colleges, and extension workers complete the "educational" structure in connection with the farmer's own business affiliations. In the last and most important premise is the individual farmer's willingness to cooperate.

RUNNING WATER IN EVERY FARM HOME ASSN. AIM

State Wide Contest to be Waged by Home Bureau Fed.

Urbana, Ill.—(AP)—A state-wide contest aimed eventually at putting running water in every farm and small-town home in Illinois will be launched during the latter part of this month by the Illinois Home Bureau Federation in cooperation with the extension service of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, it was announced today.

From 150 to 200 entries each are expected from 50 to 80 counties during the first year of the four or five that the contest is planned to run. Cash prizes and other awards have been arranged for both individuals and counties entered in the contest.

Members of the home bureau's committee on the contest are Mrs. Pearl M. Reistock, Urbana, Chairman; Mrs. Inez M. Stagg, Avon, and Mrs. George Holliday, Harrisburg. Representing the college in the contest will be Miss M. Attie Souder, home management extension specialist, and Glenn Hoover, farm mechanics extension specialist.

It will be the purpose of the contest to encourage the installation or improvement of water supplies and of water and sewage systems in every home on the farms and in the small towns of Illinois, according to the announcement. Cooperating with the college and home bureau in carrying out this purpose will be the Illinois Master Plumbers' Association, Plumbing and Heating Industry Bureau, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, Illinois State Board of Health, Illinois Household Science Clubs and the Illinois State Board of Vocational Education.

In order to equalize the competition, the state has been divided into eight sections on the basis of types of farming. Competition will be further divided into five classes within each district. Class 1 is for the greatest improvement in a rent farm home, the cost not to exceed $300 exclusive of labor. Class 2 is for the greatest improvement in an owned farm home, the cost not to exceed $100 exclusive of labor. Class 3 is for the greatest improvement in a small-town home, the cost not to exceed $100 exclusive of labor. Class 4 is for the greatest improvement for the money expended in a small-town home, the expenditure not to exceed $100.

All homes entered in the contest will be scored before and after the improvements have been made and the awards made accordingly.

For the winning individual in each county the first three classes carry an award of $5 in cash or $10 in plumbing material or a 5 per cent discount on any plumbing equipment bought during the following year. The fourth and fifth classes carry an award of $10 cash or $20 in plumbing material or a 5 per cent discount on any plumbing equipment bought during the following year.

A public drinking fountain to be placed at the county seat will be awarded to the county within each district having the most homes entered in the contest and making the highest score. This like the other state awards, will be presented by the Illinois Master Plumbers' Association. Local prizes are expected to be arranged to supplement the state-awarded prizes in each of the classes.

252,000 Bad Eggs Condemned by State

Springfield, Ill., April 22—(AP)—That all the "bad eggs" in Chicago are not in gangland circles was demonstrated today when inspectors for the state food and dairies division announced they had found 700 cases, of 252,000 eggs, that were unfit for human use.

Wholesale condemnation in this manner is unusual, the state officials said. The shipment of eggs was brought to Chicago from commercial hatcheries in Illinois and other states, particularly Indiana and Ohio. The eggs had undergone partial incubation.

Illinois' egg law provides that all eggs unfit for food must be broken and treated to prevent their use for food. Tanneries and other industrial concerns afford the only local market for eggs of this class.

Hatcheries throughout Illinois are warned by state officials against selling eggs which have been partially incubated. To guard against further violations, poultry husbandry divisions of the department of agriculture have sent letters to all accredited hatcheries, pointing out the provisions of the Illinois law.

A. D. Smith, supervising hatchery inspector, states that the high percentage of infertility in eggs this season is due to the high prices paid for broilers a year ago. Nearly all the early hatched pullets were sold and a big proportion of the eggs now in the incubators came from the late pullets of 1928. Lack of vitality in the younger hens show up in the increased proportion of eggs spoiled in incubation.

State Must Pay for County-Owned Cattle

Springfield, Ill., April 22—(AP)—Cattle owned by a county poor farm which are destroyed by the state when found infected with bovine tuberculosis must be paid for by the state despite the fact that they are "public property."

This was the ruling of attorney general Carlstrom today in answer to a query from the state's attorney at Rock Island.

"Cattle purchased for the county farm for the benefit of the poor and paid for by taxes, are primarily for the benefit of the poor, even though such property is public in character," the ruling said. "If the cattle are destroyed others to replace them can be paid for only out of funds levied and collected by taxation. The county, at least in this sense, is owner of the cattle."

"It is my opinion that the state would be liable for these cattle killed under the tuberculosis eradication act."

Mt. Vernon H. S. Ag. Class Earned Profit

Mt. Vernon, Ill., April 22—(AP)—Twenty-four thousand Bermuda onion plants, twenty baby chicks and 1,000 white pine seedlings were among the purchases made by members of the vocational agriculture class of Mt. Vernon high school with surplus funds collected through club activities.

The club members sold the onion plants to Mt. Vernon gardeners and others at cost. The baby chicks, which cost $1.00 each, will be used to furnish hatching eggs for next year's work.

In addition to these purchases, the class bought 100 bee hive bodies. With the aid of manual training students they painted them and built tops and bottoms. The completed products were then sold to townspeople.

MISSOURI FARM LOAN ASSN. HAS BEEN ORGANIZED

Farmers of Five S. E. Counties Can Get Funds from It

St. Louis, Mo.—(UP)—One million dollars worth of farm relief will be available to farmers of five southeastern counties at 7-1/2 per cent as soon as the capital stock of the Southeast Missouri Agricultural Credit Corporation is sold, it was announced here today by organizers of the concern.

Capitalized for $250,000, William R. Humphrey, president, said today the funds would be available when $18,000 additional stock had been added. Subscriptions today totaled $182,000.

Capitalized near crop failures in the counties to be served by the corporation resulted in the appointment of Julian N. Friant, St. Louis, to represent the farmers in securing a loan corporation.

Friant explained H. Paul Bestor, president of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of St. Louis, agreed he would loan such a corporation $1,000,000 if capitalization of $250,000 could be raised. The corporation will borrow at 5-1/2 per cent and loan to the farmers at 7-1/2 per cent holding a first mortgage on the entire crop as collateral. The landowner will be required to waive rent until liability is paid off.

The corporation is organized for this season's crop only and will be liquidated after the liabilities are satisfied next fall and winter, Friant said.

Bull Goes by Plane Chicago to Texas

Schulenburg, Tex.—(AP)—Covering a distance of 1,200 air miles a purebred yearling Holstein bull was sent here from Chicago by airplane to augment ceremonies incident to breaking ground for a large milk condenser.

Gov. Dan Moody received the "flying bull" for the community and turned him over to his new owners, a group of progressive dairy farmers. The tri-motored plane made four stops, in Illinois, Missouri, Oklahoma, and Texas, to feed and water the bovine passenger.

Veterinarians pronounced the animal ready for the long flight, and a special dispensation for transportation across the many states was obtained from the interstate commerce commission. Aviation officials say the flight broke all previous records for air transportation of animals, both in weight carried and distance covered.

WHEAT STRAW UTILIZED FOR INSULATION BOARD

St. Joseph, Mo.—(AP)—A factory here has purchased 30,000 tons of wheat straw which is being manufactured into insulation board at the rate of 125,000 square feet a day.

Prof. O. R. Sweeney, Iowa state college, says that when used in the walls of a building the board saves 25 to 30 per cent in fuel used for heating. Farmers are using it in poultry houses, hog houses and other buildings.

FARM BOYS CAN JOIN "FUTURE FARMERS" SOON

State Group to be Organized at Urbana Middle of June

Springfield, Ill., April 23—(AP)—Five thousand Illinois boys will be eligible to join the "Future Farmers of America," national organization of vocational agriculture students, after the state group has been organized at the time of the state judging contests at the University of Illinois June 14 and 15, J. E. Hill, State Supervisor of Vocational Agriculture said today.

The Illinois group, composed of 187 high schools, will draw up their constitution and then issue charters for local clubs, Mr. Hill said. The division of vocational agriculture now has a number of petitions and requests about membership in the organization and it is believed that all schools will join the national group.

More than 30 states have signified their intention of joining the national organization this year, Mr. Hill said. The association was organized last year by vocational agriculture students in attendance at the American Royal Livestock Show at Kansas City.

All of the 100,000 students of vocational agriculture in the country are eligible for membership. Four degrees of membership are provided for in the constitution. The first year students are "Green Hands," second year students who have successfully carried on their word and filled certain qualifications are eligible to be "Future Farmers of Illinois." Then two per cent of the state members are eligible to become "State Farmers." The final degree, that of "American Farmer," can only be given a limited number and must be approved by the national convention. Among the qualifications for this degree is a bank account of $500.

Incentives in the work have been provided by the farm journal of Philadelphia in the form of a $1,000 prize for the chapter showing the greatest accomplishment for the year's work, and an award of $1,000 to be given by the Kansas City Star for the outstanding individual worker in the "Future Farmer" work.

Lady Bugs Guard Mass. Onion Crop

Deerfield, Mass.—(AP)—Onion growers in this part of the Connecticut valley will resort this year, for the first time to the use of lady bugs to protect their crop from the ravages of the onion thrip.

A large shipment from the government laboratories in Colorado Springs has been received by one grower and he will share some of the lady bugs with several other onion raisers in this section. The bugs will be kept in a dormant condition, at low temperature, until July, when they will be released.

Should the experiment prove a success, additional and extensive use of the lady bug is predicted, since the thrip has become an increasing menace to the prosperity of the big onion farms here.

HALF CAMPUS IS FARM

TOPEKA, Kas.—(AP)—Washburn college offers no academic courses in farming, yet half its campus is operated as a farm.

The "south 80" of the school's 160-acre campus forms a chicken and stock farm this year. Last year corn was the principal crop. The barn on the farm, which is leased by the school to private farmers, was Washburn's first gymnasium.

Publicity to Boost Canada's Dairy Int.

Ottawa, Ont.—(AP)—Through continuous publicity the national dairy council of Canada plans to increase the use of milk and milk products, thereby creating a larger home demand.

It points out that the council of the United States increased the consumption of milk in that country more than one-half pint per capita per day, and other dairy products in proportion, by well directed publicity.

Officers say the council already has influenced to a large extent an increased consumption of milk and its products in Canada, adding perhaps millions of dollars to the income of Canadian dairymen. Apart from government agencies, the council is the only organization working for the interest of Canada's dairy industry in all its branches.

Tris Speaker, famous center fielder of other days, never passed up an opportunity to air his grievance when he believed the umpire had pulled one. Yet he had a way of doing it that gained the umpire's consideration rather than his enmity. As a result, Speaker was seldom chased from a game despite his many arguments.

Speaker will tell you that Dick Nallin of the American League was one umpire who generally stopped him, simply because Nallin wouldn't take his protests seriously. He always had some way to sidetrack the protest, no matter how strongly Speaker believed he had a kick coming.

I recall a happening of a few years ago in Boston. At the finish, Speaker was either so mad or so amused that he couldn't do a thing other than throw his arms in the air in disgust and walk away.

Coveleskie started the game for Cleveland and was relieved in the first inning by some youngster, who managed to retire the side runless, even though the first three men to face Cove reached first safely. Wilderness got the rookie into trouble in the second inning. He walked three and fanned two. With the bases filled and three balls and two strikes on the batter, he threw a low curve that Umpire Nallin ruled a ball. Had he called it a strike, it would have again retired the side runless. Instead, a run was forced over the plate. Then followed six hits and, before the inning was over, Boston had made nine runs.

At the close of the inning, as Speaker walked into the bench with the importance of the disputed strike uppermost in his mind, he stopped at the home plate and addressed Nallin:

"Well, that's nine runs you handed them and all because of one strike you missed."

"What do you think of that," replied Nallin. "On one pitch I scored nine runs."

"Just that," said Speaker. "Well, if that's really the case," answered Nallin, "you should get my release from Ban Johnson and sign me for the Indians. There isn't a guy on your club that can drive nine runs across the plate on one pitch."

That ended the protest. Speaker threw his arms in the air and walked away.

Mushy Callahan to Meet Myers Tonight

Los Angeles, April 23—(AP)—Mushy Callahan, junior welterweight champion, hits another high spot along his comeback trail here tonight when he meets Spug Myers, Pocatello, Idaho, battler, over the ten round route at the Olympic Auditorium.

Although the pair have met three times, with Callahan winning two of the encounters, the bout is expected to prove a rugged test for the champion, who is endeavoring to disprove reports that he is through.

NO PAROLE CHANGES

Springfield, Ill., April 22—(AP)—Although he recommended revision of the parole laws in his inaugural address, Governor Emmerson will present no measures to the present legislature to correct the situation.

The Governor has been too busy with other projects to give the necessary attention to the subject, but in the legislative interim he plans a study of the entire situation, and will probably have bills prepared for the next assembly.

Appointment of Mr. Block was made recently by the jamboree committee of the regional council, of which J. N. Collins of Minneapolis is chairman. Other members of the committee are C. L. Sommers, St. Paul; Dr. A. H. Sanford, Rochester; Dr. F. U. Davis, Fairbault, and Frank S. Gold, Minneapolis.

Two assistants to Mr. Block are to be appointed by the regional executive committee. It was also announced Sunday by H. F. Pote of St. Paul, northwest scout executive.

The troop which will represent the northwest region at the international jamboree will be composed of 24 boy scouts chosen from the membership of 23,000 boys in the district. Each of the 22 councils in the region will have at least one representative in the troop, and scouts will be chosen on the basis of leadership possibilities, personality, and their record in scouting.

Help Every 5 Years
The jamborees are held every five years, and the 1929 gathering will include not only two weeks at the jamboree camp, but a trip through England and Holland and the World War zones of Belgium and France. More than 30,000 boys representing 44 nations will be gathered at the camp at Arrowe park, near Liverpool.

Mr. Block, leader of the jamboree troop, is one of the pioneers of scouting in Minneapolis. He began in 1915 as an assistant scoutmaster of troop 86. He became scoutmaster of troop 36 in 1918, and two years later was put in charge of troop 102. In 1921 he was named as deputy commissioner and later became a member of both the Minneapolis and the regional scout commissions.

1.—The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, is three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.
2.—You can change only one letter at a time.
3.—You must have a complete word of common usage, for each pump, slang words and abbreviations don't count.
4.—The order of letters cannot be changed.

Parachute Supports Plane in Drop to Earth

In a spectacular demonstration the other day at Santa Ana, Calif., Captain Roscoe Turner brought safely to earth the Thunderbird plane shown above by means of a parachute shot out of the upper wing by power springs. Captain Turner shut off the motor and released the chute 5000 feet up and piloted the plane to earth with only slight damage to the ship. The experiment was conducted by the Aircraft Safety Equipment Corporation. Captain Turner is shown in the inset. The center picture shows the plane's drop to earth. Below the plane after the landing is pictured, with Captain Turner to the left. In his right hand Captain Turner is holding a rabbit's foot.

THE CALL OF THE OUTDOORS

TRAILING ARBUSUS

"Let's go to the woods for trailing arbutus on Saturday," said Larry McGinnis to his chums. "The blossoms are just coming out in the full bloom, and I like to get the first ones. They are bigger, and my mother says they are always much sweeter than the later ones."

"Aw, why Saturday?" growled Joe Brady. "I would rather go Sunday; dad wants me to do some odd jobs around the yard on Saturday—and I need the two bits. My smokes are getting low."

"Smokes?" asked Larry. "Well, even if I must hurry around and go to church first, I'll go."

The other boys agreed, and on Sunday, as soon as the parental restriction were lifted, one by one the crowd assembled at the village school house with his cigarettes and plenty of matches, and the balance of the gang burning with curiosity and hankering to try it themselves if it didn't kill Joe.

Away they went, arbutus hunting, but some not much interested in the bouquet of the sweet-scented little game of the forest for Larry's mother.

Off over the hills to old farmer Dimm's woods, a merry crowd. On the posts at the bars was an Izak Walton League sign, "PREVENT FIRES AND SAVE TIMBER," but only Joe saw it. And he said nothing. He did not want his plans to show his pals what a grown up man he was, to go away.

Several of the boys joined Larry in diligently seeking the fragrant little blossoms, but the other three were more interested in sticking close to Joe.

EVERYTHING WENT ALONG LOVELY

Until Joe became careless. First he dropped a lighted match. Later he dropped the stub of a "burn-to-the-end" cigarette and then ran along to find the arbutus hunters who were entirely out of sight.

"Run for your lives! The woods are on fire!" shouted Larry, as he came dashing through the forest, too badly frightened to hold on to his mother's bouquet of arbutus or to think of trying to stop the on-rushing flames.

And the boys, all badly frightened, left two hundred acres of the prettiest woods, arbutus and all, to the flames—a desolate ruin where only an hour before birds sang sweetly, the bursting buds, the carpet of many years, and the entire forest was a place of joy.

In 1927 there were 158,000 of these forest fires in the United States, many of them started in the same careless way. The damage aggregated $33,000,000—far more than all the money spent by the states and the government combined to prevent forest fires.

Our former President, Calvin Coolidge, summarized the situation fully in the following words:

"Flourishing woodlands mean more than timber crops, permanent industries, and an adequate supply of wood. They minister to our need for outdoor recreation; they preserve animal and bird life; they preserve the inspiring natural environment which has contributed so much to American character." Carelessness with fires is a crime against humanity," says the Izak Walton League of America. "Prevent them!"

Friday, May 10th, is the date set for the Junior Prom at the high school, always the outstanding social event.

The high school has scheduled a baseball game to be played with Byron on the local diamond Wednesday afternoon.

As a feature of spring football practice the Seniors will play a pick-up eleven made up from players from the other classes some night this week. Wednesday night was tentatively set but as this will conflict with the baseball game another date will probably be chosen.

Earl Conrad, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Conrad, organized an orchestra at Los Angeles and has secured a summer contract.

A regular meeting and smoker will be held by the American Legion at their hall this evening.

SAYS LINCOLN STATUE SHOULD BE TAKEN DOWN

Statue at Entrance to State House Grounds
Is Criticized

Springfield, Ill., April 23—(UP)—The controversy over the statue of Abraham Lincoln that stands at the entrance of the state capitol grounds flamed anew today with an editorial demand by the Illinois State Journal that it be relocated in a less conspicuous place or destroyed.

When the statue was placed some years ago a bitter controversy arose. Critics approved the head and ridiculed the body. However, it remained unchanged and the criticism died down until today when the Journal said editorially:

"Suggestion is made that the Lincoln statue on the approach to the state house be removed to another location on the grounds. A more sensible proposal suggests recapitulation of the state, preservation of the wonderful head and junking the body."

"The head is the conception of a great sculptor and is a work of art. The body is the result of an effort to portray some persons fantastic notion of 'the idealistic Lincoln.' The bust deserves a pedestal and a place worthy a masterpiece. The remainder of the statue ought to go into the melting pot."

Looks Like Caricature
"The proposal to move the statue is urged because it is so placed that it breaks the approach and detracts from its impressiveness. The statue does worse. It affronts visitors. Encountering it for the first time and in the absence of explanations, they get from it an impression that it is a caricature of Lincoln. Even when it is explained that the misshapen legs and paralytic arm are but symbols, supposed to suggest Lincoln's humility or something of that sort, the statue offends."

"It would be well to move all statuary from the state house grounds. It is out of place. There isn't room for it. The grounds are not extensive enough for adequate grass plats and there is no chance to give statues the necessary park setting. What with the drive through the north lines, of boulevard lamps and the impossible Lincoln statue, the front yard of the state house is pretty badly cluttered up."

Makes Editor Shudder
"With the passing of time, Illinois will want to commemorate in stone and bronze the names and achievements of great men other than those now represented in the statuary of great on the state house grounds. To make room for these monuments it will be necessary to assign them to plots of cemetery size. To contemplate the future appearance of the capital's wee bit of sodded front is to shudder. Already it suggests the early eighties, when the prevailing idea of magnificence was a lawn decorated with a marble cupid and dactylion castr."

SECOND HANSON TRIAL
Rochester, N. Y.—(UP)—The second trial of Glenn Jennings, coast guardman accused of second degree manslaughter in connection with the fatal shooting of Jacob D. Hanson, prominent Niagara Falls Elk, last May 6, is expected to be started here on that date, just one year after the shooting. At the initial trial in January in Elmira, the jury disagreed and Jennings was held for another trial. Hanson was shot on Lewiston Hill while driving his car toward Niagara Falls. The bullets were fired, coast guardman said, when Hanson refused to halt his car for inspection.

Reigh Count's Owner Sees Him Lose

SEEK RUDDERLESS BOAT

Boston, April 22—(UP)—Two coast guard cutters were bucking high winds, rough seas, and a snowstorm today as they sped to the aid of the rudderless freighter Westhika, almost helpless in the grip of a 50-mile gale between Georges Shoals and Cape Sable.

While the freighter, with 48 men aboard, was believed in no immediate danger, aid was called in the face of a severe storm which showed no signs of abating.

Hoover to Receive "Old Soak"

Colonel Henry L. Stimson, secretary of State, is shown with his Chinese-speaking parrot, Old Soak, which is on its way from the Philippines to Washington. The picture was taken in the Philippines, where Colonel Stimson left the bird when he came to the capital. Old Soak, becoming lonesome, was sent for by the secretary and now the bird will be received at the White House. Old Soak can say evil words in Chinese, but that matters little, as very few people understand Chinese.

CUBS SHOW THEY ARE GOOD EVERY WAY THIS SPRING

Demonstrate Possession of Something More Than Uniforms

BY HERBERT W. BARKER

Associated Press Sports Writer

Not that any one has denied it, but the time seems to have come for the experts to grant that Joe McCarthy's Chicago Cubs have something more than uniforms to prove they're baseball players and possible National League pennant winners.

Pre-season forecasts all stressed the fact that if the Cubs were in the running all year they could give the credit to their capabilities at the bat rather than in the pitcher's box.

But the first week of the season has revealed not only a tremendous batting punch in the Cubs' lineup, but also a surprising and unsuspected strength on the pitching mound as well.

Second Shut Out.

Facing the St. Louis Cardinals at Chicago yesterday, the Cubs played bang-up ball behind Pat Malone's great pitching and won, 3 to 0, for their fourth victory in five starts.

After holding the Cincinnati Reds scoreless for six innings, Carmen Hill of Pittsburgh blew up in the seventh and the Reds scored six runs before Remy Kremer could halt the carnage. The Reds added three more in the eighth to bring the final score to 9-4.

In the American League George Uhle pitched Detroit to a one-to-nothing shutout over the St. Louis Browns at St. Louis but he had some help from his mound rival, Jack Ogden. Jack's balk in the first inning coupled with two singles allowed the Tigers to score the only run of the game.

In the only other major league game of the day, Al Thomas gave the Cleveland Indians nothing to cheer about and the Chicago White Sox galloped away with a 10 to 0 decision. Thomas was touched for seven hits, but he scattered them in such fashion that the Indians never got around to scoring a run. About half the Cleveland pitching staff tried to stop the Sox batting spree with a distinctly noticeable lack of success.

we are talking about, two less polished pitchers on the Giant ball club—Fred Toney and Phil Douglas, and they didn't waste any motions to let Nehf know that they didn't think so much of him and his elevated ways.

We happened to be in the company of Toney and Douglas one evening when they were saying that Nehf was no ball player and we wanted to know why.

"Why?" Douglas asked back with some attempt at surprise. "I'll tell you why. That guy says he can play the piano and he makes a lot of noise. But he don't know nothing about music. I and Fred asked him the other night to play 'In My Heart' and he said he never heard of it. He don't know nothin' about music when he never heard that piece."

MODEST? AW, YEH!

The Yankee ball players tell another story about their "Mouthy" Durocher, who is pleased to be called the freshest rookie in baseball.

When Durocher reported to the Yankee training camp this year he asked Miller Huggins what his job was.

Huggins told him to stick around a while and make himself handy and that he didn't have any job until his boss looked over him. The $125,000 boy from the Pacific coast.

"I'll be no water boy on this club," Durocher told the boss and he went out on the third base coaching line.

ABE MARTIN

I don't know what it is, but there's something about President Hoover that tells me they'd better go slow about asking him to drop his work and step out on the lawn to be photographed. Of all the professions, as things now stand, I should say being a criminal lawyer has the brightest outlook.

and "jockeyed" the life out of young Larry.

SHADES OF THE GREAT

Before the club broke camp, Huggins called Durocher into his room and announced to him very seriously that he was to be the shortstop of the club. And Durocher took the door off the hinges to tell the gang.

"I'm playing shortstop on this ball club," he told all the veterans and the younger fellows. "And I'm going to show this league greater shortstop than the damn league ever has seen. Let's go! Some pepper, you guys!"

29 Bunion Plodders Continue Long Race

Vandalia, Ill., April 23—(AP)—Paciently plodding toward the west, the 29 survivors in C. C. Pyle's bunionsless bunion derby resumed their trek this morning, leaving Vandalia at 7 o'clock with Collinsville, Ill., 50 miles distant, set as their control point for tonight. Sun-blackened despite weeks of inclement weather, the pavement pounders moved on to their final stopping place in Illinois with hope undimmed after 976 miles.

SELECTION OF U. S. TENNIS TEAM EXPECTED SOON

George Lott of Chicago Key Man of Probable American Team

BY GEORGE KIRKSEY

United Press Staff Correspondent

New York, April 23—(UP)—Selection of the United States Davis Cup team which will meet Canada in the opening American Zone match at Montreal May 16, 17 and 18, is expected to be made soon.

William T. Tilden and Francis T. Hunter, ranking players of this country, will not be available for the American Zone matches, having announced their intention of going abroad May 8.

George Lott of Chicago, ranked No. 3 in the national standings, is the key man of the 1929 team. Lott probably will be named to play in two singles matches and pair with John Hennessey of Indianapolis in the doubles.

Hennessey, ranked fourth nationally, is sure of a place on the team unless he is bothered by his weak arches.

The other two places probably will go to Wilmer Allison of Fort Worth, Tex., and John Van Ryn of East Orange, N. J., ranked Nos. 5 and 6 respectively.

Allison Looks Good

Allison was a member of the American zone squad last year and has played brilliantly in the southern tournaments this spring. His recent victory over Hunter in the annual Mason and Dixon tournament at White Sulphur Springs, Va., makes his place on the team doubly certain.

Previous to this match it was thought that Allison could not go through five grueling sets and win.

Van Ryn probably would have been a member of the Davis Cup team last year but for his wish to complete his course at Princeton. He beat both Hunter and Tilden on successive days in the Heights Casino (Brooklyn) tournaments, winning the North and South title by beating Sadakazu Onda, Japanese Davis Cup player.

Wilbur F. Coen, Jr., the Kansas City youngster who was a substitute on the European Zone team last year, is not likely to win a berth on this year's team.

London Stadium Too Small for Big Game

London, April 23—(AP)—The 93,000 seats in Wembley Stadium have been found to be entirely inadequate for the crowd which would like to see the final of the English Football Association Cup between Portsmouth and Bolton Wanderers on Saturday.

All seats were sold a month ago and officials now have decided to add 20,000 extra seats into the stadium.

THE SCOREBOARD

(BY UNITED PRESS)

Yesterday's hero—Al Thomas, Chicago White Sox pitcher, who blanked the Cleveland Indians, 10 to 0.

He allowed seven hits but only three Indians reached second base. The White Sox made 15 hits and were aided by four Cleveland errors, two of them by Jackie Tavener.

Singles by Hellmann and Alexander drove Gehring home with the run by which the Detroit Tigers beat the St. Louis Browns, 1 to 0.

Gehring had singled and advanced to second on a balk by Johnny Oden. Both teams made five hits.

Rogers Hornsby continued his terrific hitting as the Chicago Cubs scored their second straight shutout over the St. Louis Cardinals, 3 to 0.

Hornsby hit a home run and a single. Malone had the better of Alexander in a pitcher's duel, holding the Cards to five hits.

Six runs in the seventh inning enabled the Cincinnati Reds to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 9 to 4. Grant Ham of the Pirates drew four straight walks and scored three of the losers' runs.

All other games were postponed because of bad weather.

SPEAKER STILL IN BED

Chicago, April 22—(AP)—Speaker David Shanahan of the State House of Representatives, who is undergoing treatment at a Chicago hospital, will be unable to return to Springfield this week, physicians have announced.

Hooks and Slides

FECKED THE PIANO

Art Nehf, who is now pitching for the Chicago Cubs, had a father who was a professional pianist. His father wanted him to study organ playing, but Art said he wanted to be an engineer. And he compromised by taking piano lessons.

He is, as might be expected, the best piano player in the major leagues. But, perhaps because of the paternal influence toward the more classical tunes, he never went in for jazz music.

And it was his refusal to sit down before the board and knock the edges off the ivory keys that brought upon him the reputation of being a high hat when he was pitching for the Giants.

WHO REMEMBERS THE TUNE?

There were, at the particular time

"I suffered from kidney trouble. Misery to stoop, agony to rise up, just sick all over. Foley Pills, a diuretic stimulant for the kidneys, made a big difference in me. I feel like another person, stronger and better in every way."
